[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD. HULL, Mass., April 24.-John L. Sullivan, champion pugilist of the world, has returned to his native sphere. Not one of the many hundreds of fellow-passengers saw the out lines of our brave coast with more pleasure than did the big fellow, who has returned with a wealth of English shiners.

For two days past there have a number of John L.'s friends waited anxiously for his

The hig ocean steamer Catalonia, with her wealth of "new life" for our new hive, has been watched for patiently since last Monday

No one has watched more zealously than did the Government Signal Telegraph operator on the Promontory at Hull.

To day when the sun rose from his ocean bed in all his glory, no putture of the big, black monster that connect the two con-black monster that connect the two continents was seen.

About 7 o'clock there came within the horizon something that centred the watchers' vision. The object had all the outlines of one of the big Cunarders. The vessel was twelve miles to eastward and could not at that distance be plainly made out.

On she came, steaming for the mouth of Boston's haven. Every minute her outlines became more distinct, until there wasn't possibility of mistake. It was the longed-for Catalonia.

became more distinct, until there wasn't possibility of mistake. It was the longed-for Catalonia.

The day was beautiful for the newcomers to arrive at our harbor. Just such a day as the host of friends of the "big fellow" desired on which to extend their greeting. They had been astir early, and before 80 clock the tugs Wesley A. Gove, John H. Clark and Elsie with a freight of happy sports, bands of music and Sullivan's friends, and loaded with good things, steamed away from their docks along the harbor front.

There was Manager Phillips, full of expectancy; genial Michael Gleason, Actor William H. Daly, jr.; M. T. Clark, one of Boston's merchants; Billy Hogarty, who has always clung to Boston's pride in success and adversity; Ned Gogan, who mingles sports with politos; Dan Gill, boxer by intuition; Jim Mealy and his brother Charlie, Tommy Kelley, the light-weight; ex-Representative Johnnie Ward, big Frank Magullion, Jimmie Calnan, Joe Lannon, heavy-weight; Jim Bent North End's leading sporting man; Dr. Ordway, J. A. St. John, Gaudaur's backer. Pete McCoy, Larry Kennedy, handsome Dan Murphy, Patsy Kerrigan, the hero of many fights; Paddy Duffy, so lately made a benedict, and a host of others, all well known in their lines of business.

The Catalonia brightened under the beautles of the April moruing. She approached rapidly, and shortly before 8 o'clock came in line with the Boston Light. There the tugs with their joly freights awaited. Such a greeting as was there extended. The great fighter "was seen on the bridge and then the cheering began. The tugs whistled, the scores of sporting men shouted and waved handkerchiefs and hats. Cheers and cheers and cheers followed, and Sullivan doffed his hat.

cheers with the interest that a thousand throats can do.

Sullivan looked the picture of health. The sea voyace had bronzed his skin and his eyes were bright and lit up with pleasure at the warm greeting extended him.

The steamer proceeded on its way to Quarantine, where the busy little Health boat Vigilant puffed alongside of the tig hul. The Evening World reporter, at precisely 8 o'clock, was the first person in America to welcome the famous champion of champions back to his home.

John L. stood on the hurricane deck of the Catalonia when The Evening World reporter sailed up alongside, He was just barely able to reach the champion's hand to shake it. Sullivan was dressed in a suit of dark plaid cloth the cut being faultless. His mustache is about three or four weeks old.

He expects Mitchell, Kilrain and Smith will come to this country soon, and when they do John would like to fight Kilrain. He will fight him for any amount and at any time.

will fight him for any amount and at any time.

John's arm is improving, but he will have to be careful of it for some time to come. The injury was more severe than at first reported by the papers. With the exception of four or five rounds of the Mitchell fight John had practically but one hand. In regard to the statement of one of the English papers that Sullivan and Mitchell were offered £1,500 to spar at the London Aquariam and that they had mutually refused the offer, but stated that they would don the gloves for a limited number of rounds, dividing the sum, which was increased to £8,000, John said:

"There is no truth in the report whatever.

"There is no truth in the report whatever. The stories going the rounds calculated to cast reflection on the squareness of my fight with Mitchell are utterly without foundation in fact. I fought Mitchell on the square. I should like to meet him, Kilrain, Smith or any other man. My health and constitution are just as good as ever. I have been taking the best care of myself, as perhaps you can judge by my appearance."

while abroad. He has seen all there was to see and is glad to get back to his native land. The Catalonia had about twelve hundred steerage passengers. They seemed never to tire of watching the big fellow, and one inquisitive one, whose mouth was held wide open while Sullivan was talking with The EVENING WORLD man, swallowed half a quart of water that was dashed up from between the boats.

John L. was sorry for the disappointment of his friends at the delay of the Catalonia and was as anxious to see them as they were and was as anxious to see them as they act to see him.

John has hosts of friends in this country.

Every man who was John's friend before he left Boston has a warm place for him in his heart. He will be dined and welcomed right royally, and about the middle of May lovers of the manly art are to have the pleasure of seeing him in a friendly bout with some of the heavy-weights.

He was soon transferred from the steamer, and as he landed among his cheering friends the band played, and the boats returned to the city, where they landed about 9 o'clock. During all the excitement the thousand people on the big steamer forgot the shore in their reception, and as the tugs steamed away they gave their parting fellow-passengers a tremendous cheer.

Boston, April 24.—Champion John L. Bullyan accompanied by his meanager and Sullivan, accompanied by his manager and backer, Harry Phillips, called at the Boston Globe office this morning. On the arrival of Sullivan he issued the following challenge: Sullivan he issued the following challenge:

Now that I have returned to Boston I want my constrymen to universitand that I stand ready to fight any man in the world a finish nattle in a 16foot ring for any part of $10,000 a side. I would prefer to meet Mitchell or Kirano, or both, as I want to take the conceit out of both of them.

When I sign articles for another dight it will be gener-ily understood that it is to be a battle and not a foot-race.

Both Mitchell and Kirain will be given a fair show in taits country, and I m convinced that there is not the least chance for me to fight either of them in Europe.

Should they fail to make good their boasts, and there is not the tests chance for the to again to fitten in Europe.

Should they fail to make good their boasts, and come to this country and give exhibitions as they propose to do, I will follow them all over the country and drive them out of it or make them fight. This challenge will remain open until the time of the arrival of Mitchell and Kilrain, which is supposed to be about the first of June.

JOHN L. SELLIVAN,

The champion greeted THE EVENIMO

The champion greeted The Evening World correspondent very cordially this morning. Said he: "The Evening World's story of my fight with Mitchell was the best and fairest printed. The sporling features of The Evening World have been spoken of frequently among our party. I am glad that New York still takes a little interest in me.

"The challenge which I have just given you for publication in The Evening World is the result of mature deliberation. These people must fight me or quit the country."

Boston, April 24.—While the many friends of John were congratulating him on his splendid appearance and fine condition The Evening World correspondent had an opportunity to get a good view of the big fellow.

Manager Phillips stood riveted to the deck

Manager Philips stood riveted to the deck when he saw the boys jumping over each others head and shoulders, in their efforts to grasp the hand of John L., but when the latter got his eyes on Harry he made a bound for him and in a moment had him clasped tightly in his embrace.

"How are you, old boy?" said Sullivan.
"Never felt better," replied Harry, and again the pugitistic king and the prince of managers shook each other's hand.
M. T. Clark, John Barrett, Billy Hogarty, Capt. Wm. F. Daly, jr., and Jim McKeone, the champion's old and tried friends, each grasped the big fel ow's hand in turn.

The champion, accompanied by his father, Sylvie Gookin and Harry Phillips, took a barouche at the wharf and visited the home of Sullivan's parents on Parnell street, after which he visited the Globe office and paid his respects to the Globe staff.

THE BREWERS' LOCKOUT AND THE MEN'S BOYCOTT STILL IN FULL FORCE.

The Brewers' Association Compiling Report Showing the Condition of Affairs in the Breweries—The Saloen-Keepers Said to be Combining Against the Sale of Peel Beer—To-Day's Developments.

Reports concerning the brewers' lockout continue to be conflicting. The situation is this: The union men are locked out and organized labor is engaged in applying the boycott to bring the boss brewers to terms, while on the other hand the bosses claim that the trouble is virtually over as far as they are concerned; their breweries are in operation and the boycott is not effective enough to seriously injure any pool brewer.

At the Brewers' Exchange it was reported that the Enterprise Brewing Company, of Newark, had repudiated the agreement with the unions since the brewery passed into new hands.

Secretary Seifert said that reports from the other breweries would indicate a similar condition of things as that above given.

Handbills were distributed this morning

Handbills were distributed this morning calling a meeting of salcon-keepers for this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Webster Hall for the purpose of discussing the brewers' troubles and endeavoring to bring about a settlement. One of the real purposes of the meeting is said to be the formation of an association of salcon-keepers who are not controlled by the brewers' pool.

At Clarendon Hall the men assembled in large force again to-day.

Bricklayers' Union No. 37 sent word that its members would not drink pool beer.

The boycott was reported by committees to be very elective and in consequence many sale-in-keepers were changing their beer from pool to non-pool.

John Schumler, aged nineteen years, a striking brewer, was fined $10 in the Jefferson Market Police Court this morning for lounging in front of Headleston & Woerz's brewery, in West Tenth street, and urging men not to go to work there. men not to go to work there.

Brewer Conrad Stein's union men returned to work at 20 clock this morning. The union card was issued to his customers. Mr. Stein is said to have given the union satisfactory assurances that he would live up to the agreement, but did 50 sign it, and offered to furnish a bond that he would keep his word.

The report that Proprietor Scharmann, of Clarendon Hall, sold pool beer at night was indignantly denied by the locked-out men. President Folcke, of the Beer - Drivers' Union, said that every keep of beer which entered the building had been examined by the union men and found non-pool beer.

Secretary Seifert, of the Brewers' association, said to a reporter: "As far as we are concerned the backbone of the strike is broken. It is a thing of the past."

The National Executive Board of the Federstion of Bookkeepers and Clerks held a special meeting last night. It had been reported that members of the local union had acted a drivers at Peter Buckel's, J. Doelger's and the Lion breweries in place of the locked-out union men. After a close investigation the report was found to be entirely untrue.

Train was remanded at Jefferson Market
Police Court this morning. Pat J. Logan and "Jim" Kearn, a contractor, were paroled as witnesses.

To an Evening World reporter Train made

To an Evening World reporter Train made a statement. He was reticent to others. He is a tail, well-built, handsome man of forty years, with a clear-out face, blond mustache and long black hair. He said:

"The morning papers did me wrong in saying I was a crook, three-card monte man and gambler. I have been a broker for years and kept a buckst shop till about a year ago. I never was in Texas in my life. I have always lived in New York. I live with my wife and four children at Fourth avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street. My wife is even now very ill with a young babe, and that is why I waited to be arrested rather than give myself up. I was never arrested before and never stele a pin." Leary had a room at Billy Tracy's, at 40 University place. He had a hotel at Coney Island, and his wife, 'Red Kate' Gorman, an ex-shoplifter, has a road house at Red Hook. She will take the remains, after the autopsy, for burial.

THE FLAG ORD NANCE ADOPTED.

Mayor Hewitt Dengunced by the Alderme and His Veto Overridden.

There was some heavy speechmaking when Alderman Dowling this afternoon called up the Mayor's veto of the ordinance permitting the Aldermen to have a say in the displaying of flags on the City Hall.

Alderman Divver objected to the reading of the veto in full. "We have been insulted enough," he said.
Alderman Conkling, Temporary Chairman.

Adderman Conkling, Temporary Chairman, decided that the message must be read.
Adderman Dowling moved the adoption of the ordinance over the veto.
"The Mayor," continued the Seventh Ward representative, "was surprised when he found that the Byrneses, the Murrays, the Conlins of the police force were born here.
Adderman Dowling said that Mayor Hewit's father once kept a shop at the corner of Duane and fludson streets, and displayed an English coat of arms over the door.

door.
"I am in favor of displaying the German flag on the City Hail if the Germans desire it on any natal day," exclaimed Alderman Dowling.

President Forster made a stirring speech against Mayor Hewitt's position. He read figures from the census reports to prove that Mayor Hewitt's table of Irish citizens commit ed to institutions was erroneous and extraordinarily misleading. President Forster's speech was loudly applauded.

Alderman Storm, of the brown-stone Twenty-first District, thought that the Mayor's attack was totally uncalled for.

The ordinance was adopted over the May-or's veto. Aldermen Conkling, Hubbell and Von Minden voted in the negative.

SPOOK PICTURES IN COURT.

LAWYER MARSH TELLS WHEN AND WHERE THEY WERE PRODUCED.

ola Montez's Spirit Portrait Damaged by the Police-Mr. Murch Did Not Know that the Medium was Not Gen. Diss Debar's Wife, it He Had He Would Have Turned Them from His House.

The presence of a dozen or more of Luther R. Marsh's alleged spirit pictures lent an additional interest to the proceedings against Ann O'Delia, Gen. Diss Debar and the Lawrences in the Special Sessions Court room this afternoon.

The pictures were brought from Police Headquarters at 1 o'clock by Detective Sergt. Heidelberg, who executed the search warrant for Mr. Marsh's house. The celebrated productions of the spirits of the world's great painters were brought in an uncommonly prosaic express wagon and temporarily dumped on the stone pavemen among the huge pillars of the Tombs. When they were arranged inside the railing of the court-room and the covers were removed, they stood revealed in all the glory of fresh paint and bright gilt frames. Appius Claudius smiled and looked pugil istic from a canvas about 30x20, and a villainous-looking Puritan with long, tawny hair and sallow complexion represented the spook of Rembrandt's best effort at a portrait of William Shakespeare. Mr. Marsh's favorite, an alleged portrait of an ancestor of his who lived 2,400 years ago, looked very tawdry and crude in the blazing sunshine, though Mr. Marsh gazed at it long and affectionately and would not let it out of his sight.

The other daubs consisted of apochryphal portraits of Lola Montez, St. Peter, Jesus Chri-t, St. Monica, Alesia, Rachel, Henry Wa'd Beecher and Alvin Stewart—all produced d rect from the suit; world

Wa'd Beecher and Alvin Stewart—all produced drect from the spirit world.

The biggest crowd which ever troubled the officers of the Tombs Court squad attended to-day. Fully two hours before the appointed time well-dressed women and men, with a sprinkling of Spiritualistic cranks, choked up the approaches and waited patiently. Five minutes after the doors opened the court-room was crowded, and hundreds had to stand in the aisles and outside.

At 1 o'clock the Bridge of Sighs trembled under an unusual weight, and Ann O'Del'a Messaut, slias Diss Debar, was seen crossing from the female prison, followed by Gen. Diss Debar.

Ann was richly dressed, as usual, but in her effort to appear gorgeously arraved she had put on a ridiculous poke bonnet of unusual size and apparently about ten years behind the fashion.

The Lawrences, who were out on bail, appeared promptly.

Mr. Howe and his partner Aba Hummel peared promptly.

Mr. Howe and his partner, Abe Hummel.

Mr. Howe and his partner, Abe Hummel, counsel for the posecution, wore smiling faces, as though bey were confident of success. John D. Townsend and ex-Senator Boyd completed the array of counsel.

Among the notable persons in the audience were Prof. Ogden Doremus, Herbert Kelcey, Mrs. Huntington, Mrs. Wm. F. Howe, Judge Enoch L. Lancher, Franklin Barllett, Mrs. Tony Hart, Manager Gilmore, Pearl Eytinge and Manrice Berrymore.

and Maurice Barrymore. and Maurice Berrymore.

Ann O'Delia's dignity was somewhat ruffled, for a gross indignity had been perpetrated on her by the minions of the law. An hour previously detectives had entered her cell and superintended a search by the Mairon for some documents and valuables supposed to be in her possession. The search was authorized by Justice Kilbreth. It is is not known whether or not it was successful.

But the memory of it kept the madame boiling over with excitement during the whole of the hearing. She told the story to her counsel half a dozen times, gritting her teeth and making a thousand ugly grimaces.

Mr. Marsh took the stand and Mr. Howe proceeded to re-examine him. He said he had known the medium four years. She was introduced to him as Mme. Diss Debar and she gave him to understand she was the daughter of Lola Montez. She also told him her father was King Ludwig of Bavaria.

"Officer Adams, produce the picture of Lola Montez." said Mr. Howe.

It was produced, and Mr. Marsh identified it as one painted by the spirits, remarking sorrowfully, however, that the police had punched a hole in the back of it.

It was produced Feb. 8, 1886, in the front room of the third story of his house.

"Relate the circumstances under which it was produced." urged Mr. Howe, coxingly.

"I was asked by the madame to go upstairs. I found her there with Mr. O'Sullivan, Lawrence and Gen. Diss Debar.

"There was a picture there, and I was told it had 'come.' The paint was fresh.

"The madame said: 'A picture of Lola Montez, Mr. Marsh,' Gen. Diss Debar waved his hand towards it and said, explanatively: 'My mother-in-law.' But the memory of it kept the madame his hand towards it and said, explanatively My mother-in-law.

My mother-in-law."

Q. When did you see the male defendant Debar?

A. The first time I went to see Mmc. Debar.

Q. Did the temale defendant ever introduce the General as her huse and? A. Yes. If I had known that he was not her husband! I would never have allowed rither him or her in my house. I always thought she was his wife.

Mr. Marsh's "Christmas present," which he believes to be his own portrait in which he is represented as wearing a Roman toga, was produced, identified and marked "No. 3."

Mr. Marsh said it "came" last Christmas bay. It was then quite new and smelled of

The other eleven pictures were in turn handed up and identified, with pathetic comments by Mr. Marsh.

In regard to No. 5. a picture of St. Peter dressed in a black Prince Albert cost, Mr. Marsh said it came on a piece of blank camvas piaced on the head of Luther Colby. That was in Dec. 1, 1887.

He examined the virgin canvas before the picture came. It came in his full view. The picture came almost instantaneously, finished as it is now. It was represented to be painted by Rembrandt in the spirit world. Rinbhael's picture was hosted in.

"When the picture of Raphael was painted by Rembrandt." said Mr. Marsh, "it was promised that Raphael would return the com-

Mr. Howe, in seductive tones.

"Arres. me?" repeated Mr. Marsh, with emphasis.

"No. sir."

the fat Ann O'Delia from her seat ouside the railing.

"Raphael's promise," Mr. Marsh continued. "was made by 'clairandient' communication through Mme, Diss Debar."

Rembrandt's picture came as described by Mr. Marsh in a room in which he and Mr. O'Sullivan and the medium were the sole occupants. That was on Jan. 8, 1888. All three left the room after a while, locking the door and leaving only the blank canvas in the room. When they returned in a few minutes the picture was there. It came on Mr. O'Sullivan's head.

"Is Mr. O'Sullivan still at large?" asked Mr. Townsend, sarcastically.

"No; I think he is in Bloomingdale; that is, he ought to be there in public estimation, I suppose," was Mr. Marsh's reply.

The aged lawyer then tried to convert the audience to a belief in the supernatural origin of the pictures. He enthusiastically dwelt on the supposed fact that the eyes of the pictu e followed the spectator wherever he went.

he went.

He would up by saying that if any one else could produce an instantaneous picture in oils on a blank canvas he would be glad to bow his knee to them. "We will show you that trick in this court-room before we get through," promised Mr.

Howe. When Luther R. Marsh's ancestor's picture was held up there was a shout of laughter. "Does it remind you of an eminent citizen of this town?" saked Mr. Howe. "No. sir," replied Mr. Marsh. "Not of Mr. 'Fatty' Walsh?" queried Mr.

"Not of Mr. 'Fatty' Walsh?" queried Mr. Hows.

"No, sir. Perhaps it may remind me somewhat of yourself."

"Emphatically no," replied Mr. Howe in a horrified ton.

Mr. Marsh awore that the particular picture was painted according to Mme. Diss D bar's salement by Appelles, court painter to Alexander the Great and rulip of Macenton. It came walls he had his

Mme. Diss Denar restored several pictures for im which had become decayed by centuries of expoure. She just hed up her hads and add "Restored," and the thing was some instancer.

Mr. Howe here thought he had enough of this kind of testimony, and Lawyer Town-send took Mr. Marsh in hand for crossexamination.

Speaking of the time when the pictures first began to "come," Mr. Marsh was

Q. Were you in good health then? A. Yes, sir: I was never sick a lay in my life.
Q. And your mental laculities—were they all right? A. Well, what little mind I ever had I had then end I have now.

Mr. Marsh explained that after his wife died in August last he wanted to have the exclusive use of Ann O'Delia's marvellous powers and invited her to his house.

Q. Was the deed of git of your house made ov to sime. Diss Debar at her request? A. No; al to sime. Diss Debar at her request? A. No; she did not ask me, nor did any one on her behalf, she knew nothing of my intention until I gave her the eed.

He said he looked upon the deed as a consummated will to prevent a contest as to his sanity after death.

'I have beaten the lawyers so often in my life and I hoped to beat them when I was dead," he said, smilingly,

Mr. Marsh continued that this prosecution was begun without his consent, and he did not know who was directing it. Until the not know who was direct ng it. Until the officers of the law took his guests out of his house he was living happily and contentedly. He told how "Gen." Diss Debar translated a book for him, for which he was paid.

a book for him, for which he was paid.

"I formed a very pleasant acquaintance with 'Gen.' Diss Debar—if he is a general," said Mr. Marsh.

'The General shook his head and said:
"No: not a general."

As to the bills which came in for supplies for Mme. Diss Debar, her husband and their reervants, he said he usually paid them without question. "I didn't care about money. It didn't matter who paid them, so long as they were paid," he added.

Charged with Cruelty to a Cat. William Weaver, twenty-eight years old, of 119 West Forty-seventh street, was held in $300 ball in the Yorkville Police Court this morning on the Yorswille Police Court this morning on a charge of cruelty to a cat. He is a stepson of exsurrogate Caivin and a cours of R. Berry Walt, Mr. Weaver's sawage bullions attacked a cat in
A. W. Barney's saloon, at Frity-mint street and Madison avenue, and tore it in a frightful manner.
Harney threw the cat out into the street to dewhereupon Weaver set his dog on it. The cat was quicky form to pieces, we saw multistined that he was not responsible for the Brst attack of the dog, and that he draed the dog to attack the cat
the second time merely to put the poor creature out of its misery.

Penri Eytings Defeated in Court. Civil Justice Clancy has decided in favor of the plaint if in the sult brought by Mary C. Hense against Pearl Eytinge Yard, the actress, to recover against reari hytings vard, the actress, to recover $103.45 for board, lodging and borrowed money. At the trial last Friday the defence was that Mrs. Benacks sons had stolen various articles of wearing appa el, for which the plaintiff had assumed to be responsible. Justicy Clancy said that the counterctain was no defence, as Mrs. Honas is not responsible for the wrong-ong of others.

QUEEN VICTORIA IN BERLIN.

VERY LITTLE CEREMONY AND SOME EN-THUSIASM.

Entering the Palace at Charlottenburg Very Quietly So that the Kaiser Might Not be Disturbed-How the Queen Was Received at the Station-Only a Few Allowed to

INV CARLS TO THE PRESS NEWS ASSOCIATION ! Berlin, April 24.—Queen Victoria arrived at 8.45 this morning, coming direct from Munich. She was received at the station by the Empress Victoria, the Crown Prince William, Prince Henry and the four Princesses, daughters of the Empress All entered the royal saloon car as the train stopped, and embraced the Queen.

The Crown Prince gave his arm to the Queen, assisted her to alight from the car, and escorted her to the carriage.

The Queen bowed to a select few who were permitted to remain on the platform, among them the British Ambassador and his wife, and the private secretary of the Doweger Empress Augusta, who, owing to infirmities, was unable to be present. The party descended the stairs, which were carpeted and decked with flowers, and en tered carriages. They proceeded to the castle of Charlottenburg in the following order : The Queen, the Empress, Princess Beatrice and the Crown Prince William in the first carriage.

Prince Henry and sisters in the second carriage.

The route to Charlottenburg was lined with people, who cheered with some enthusiasm as the carriages passed, but as the party drew near to the castle the cheering subsided, and finally ceased altogether, out of fear of disturbing the Kaiser. So the Queen and her daughter entered the palace in silence.

There was in the whole reception no more peremony than the ordinary and daily etiquette of the Court required. This was strictly in accordance with the wishes of the Queen.

The Emperor rose early, and the arrival of Queen Victoria having been announced, passed into one of the salons to meet her. As the Queen entered he gravely bowed a welcome, making no attempt to speak. This nuts welcome deeply touched the Queen. After a brief interview the Emporer with
